Joy of Cooking Party Time

Find Us On:

Guests of the Munro House B&B come alone, as couples, or with friends for the popular Chef Night Cooking Parties. Once there, everyone's divided into pairs, but their partner is not necessarily the person they came with.

Donning aprons, each team is assigned two dishes to prepare for the seven-course meal. One lucky guest is crowned Head Chef, complete with the tall white hat. To make it easier for out-of-town guests, the innkeeper does all of the shopping ahead of time.

The evening's format is informal. More accurately, it's minimally controlled chaos. Couples move from room to room, slicing, dicing, mincing, and chopping, cutting, singing and dancing. After dinner, guests are given a complete tour of the 1834 Greek Revival-style mansion, including secret rooms and a tunnel, which was a stop for an estimated 400 slaves escaping on the Underground Railroad.

The innkeepers make it clear that these parties are not professional cooking getaways; they're for amateurs who want to get into the kitchen, met new friends and have a lot of fun.
